Metaphors We Live By By

The idea is that we live by metaphors - 'war', 'sex', 'up is good' etc etc. This is a trans-national, trans-cultural truth that holds true for the whole species. That as the brain recognises what is going on neural paths are activated, and where the same thing is recognised, the same neural paths are triggered, until they get 'hard-wired' into our consciousness and behaviour.

Summary: Metaphors We Live By by George Lakoff and Mark Johnson Metaphors We Live By is one of those books that I'm pretty sure I understood before I ever knew it existed. Some of the ideas and arguments it presents about metaphors and their role in how we relate to the world around us seem almost second-nature to me.

Summary of Metaphors We Live By - George Lakoff and Mark ...

Metaphors We Live By. George Lakoff, Mark Johnson. It would be hard to overstate how important this work is in contemporary philosophy, to say nothing of the other fields it has influenced. Aside from the more practical implications in understanding the way our minds work, it has some really radical arguments of the sort that would once have been called metaphysical, dealing with the nature of reality.
