Study Guide for Anatomy & Physiology Cell Structure & Function

The cell is the basic functional unit of all living things. The plasma membrane (cell membrane) bounds the cell and encloses the nucleus (discussed presently) and cytoplasm. The cytoplasm consists of specialized bodies called organelles suspended in a fluid matrix, the cytosol, which consists of water and dissolved substances such as proteins and nutrients.

Physiology Notes

The Biology of Cells course is complete in its own right, but it also provides a useful introduction to further studies in biology, biochemistry and genetics, for both biologists and non-biologists. The course is organised jointly by the Departments of Biochemistry, Plant Sciences, Genetics, and Zoology.

Biology of Cells – Natural Sciences

Tripos

Physiology is the study of how the human body works. It describes the chemistry and physics behind basic body functions, from how molecules behave in cells to how systems of organs work together.
