The Campaign Against Living Miserably (CALM) is leading a movement against suicide. Every week 125 people in the UK take their own lives. And 75% of all UK suicides are male. CALM exists to change this. Join the campaign to take a stand against suicide.

Campaign Against Living Miserably - CALM, the campaign

 We campaign with media partners, brands and ambassadors to spread awareness of suicide and its devastating impact with campaigns like #Project84, #DontBottleItUp and The Best Man Project. We challenge boring male stereotypes and encourage positive behavioural change and help-seeking behaviour, using cultural touch points like art, music, sport and comedy.

Within the campaign selection criteria you are able to build an audience to send your campaign to from within the campaign. If you tend to build a different audience based upon contact criteria that you have stored within GatorMail each time you send, then this is a particularly good method as you will not end up with hundreds of redundant groups stored within GatorMail.

There are many reasons why voluntary and community organisations campaign as a way of achieving their mission: Campaigning can address the root causes of social problems and not just their effects. Some organisations may take a two-pronged approach - they might provide services to support people experiencing a particular problem, while also campaigning to tackle the root cause of the problem.
