Essay on Gender Stereotypes Gender stereotypes are enacted from an early age. Boys are expected to wear dull, 'masculine' colours and faced with parental outrage if they want to dress up as a princess. Girls are told to 'play nicely' and steered towards 'suitable' games, rather than climbing trees.

Essay on Gender Stereotypes - Scholar Advisor

Gender tends to be referred to as the social characteristics associated with being male and female members of society (Woodward 2000). Gender roles are cultural and personal which are learned through many institutions in society, although they do vary among different cultures.
