Since Office 2016, Excel has offered yet another if-then function. The IFS function works similarly to IF: A "then_value" is assigned to a logical test – but up to 127 times. The syntax looks as follows: =IFS(Something is True1; Value if True1; [Something is True2; Value if True2];...[Something is True127; Value if True127])

Excel if-then statements: Formula simply explained with ...

These statements are really two "if/then" statements. The statement "A if and only if B" is equivalent to the statements "If A, then B" and "If B, then A." Another way to think of this sort of statement is as an equivalence between the statements A and B: whenever A holds, B holds, and whenever B hold, A holds.

The IF-THEN function in Excel is a powerful way to add decision making to your spreadsheets. It tests a condition to see if it's true or false and then carries out a specific set of instructions based on the results. For example, inputting an IF-THEN in Excel, you can test if a specific cell is greater than 900. If it is, you can make the formula return the text "PERFECT."

How to Use the IF-THEN Function in Excel

By Mark Ryan. Every geometry proof is a sequence of deductions that use if-then logic. You write one of the given facts as statement 1. Then, for statement 2, you put something that follows from statement 1 and write your justification for that in the reason column. Then you proceed to statement 3, and so on, till you get to the prove statement. The way you get from statement 1 to statement 2, from statement 2 to statement 3, and so on is by using if-then logic.
