China has also sought greater participation in the international oil and natural gas market to meet its growing energy demand and diversity its energy supply. Despite the adoption of a variety of preventive measures and policies designed to secure energy supplies, China's dependence on foreign oil and gas will continue to grow rapidly up to 2020.

Global Energy Policy: A View from China - The Handbook of ...

Yet, the chapter argues, it is imperative to avoid the apparent systemic risks for global oil markets associated with NOCs. The call on global energy policy therefore consists in ensuring NOC performance, which requires both domestic and international political will, i.e., commitment at the highest levels to the support of institutional capacity, transparency, and accountability.
