World Wide Web CGI (Common Gateway Interface) Programming in C. When the contents of a web page are not static, but rather are generated on-the-fly as the page is fetched, a program runs to generate the contents. When that program requires input from the client who is actually fetching the page (input such as the selections made when filling out a form) that input is propagated to the program via the Common Gateway Interface, or CGI.

World Wide Web CGI (Common Gateway Interface) Programming in C
CGI is the part of the Web server that can communicate with other programs running on the server. With CGI, the Web server can call up a program, while passing user-specific data to the program (such as what host the user is connecting from, or input the user has supplied using HTML form syntax). The program then processes that data and the server passes the program's response back to the Web browser.
