Water pollution is the contamination of water in water bodies such as rivers, oceans, lakes and swamps. This means that one or more substances have built up in water to the extent of causing problems to people, animals and plants. Water pollution means any substance that makes water dirty. Usually, dirty here means unfit for use.

Water pollution: Causes, Effects, Solutions ...

Water pollution can be defined as the contamination of a stream, river, lake, ocean or any other stretch of water, depleting water quality and making it toxic for the environment and humans. There are two types of water pollution:

Solutions to water pollution: how to improve water quality?

Non-point source pollution is more common, and contributes more pollution to surface water than does point source pollution. This type of pollution is difficult to identify and may come from pesticides, fertilizers, or automobile fluids washed off the ground by a storm.

Lesson 2. Pollution and Water Quality Pollution Sources

Water pollution from sewage and water pollution from fertiliser runoff have the same end result (increase in decomposing bacteria leading to a decrease in dissolved oxygen and death of aquatic organisms) but they do not arrive at this point in the same way. You need to learn both and be aware of the differences between them.
