At some point, the lies reshape who we are as a nation. We become an entire "People of the Lie", poisoned by the kind of calculating evil, the cynical inversion of the good, that psychiatrist M. Scott Peck described in his groundbreaking 1983 book with that title. We're nearly there as a nation, which raises the question: What do we do now?

People of the Lie - The Catholic Thing

"People of the lie" are what Peck calls evil people -- those who refuse to acknowledge their own sin, who scapegoat other people instead, not just occasionally but routinely. Peck believes evil people are both common and ordinary-looking, more likely to be a church deacon than a psychopath, because they create a respectable veneer that belies their callous, independent hearts.

Probing Human Evil The famous psychiatrist and author of the widely-read book The Road Less Traveled, M. Scott Peck, wrote a lesser-known work in the late 1990's entitled People of the Lie. In it, Peck examined the concept of human evil along with how and why it manifests.

People of the lie - The Christian Post

While they seem to lack any motivation to be good, they intensely desire to appear good. Their "goodness" is all on a level of pretense. It is, in effect, a lie. This is why they are the "people of the lie." Actually, the lie is designed not so much to deceive others as to deceive themselves. They cannot or will not tolerate the pain of self-reproach.

Who Are The People Of The Lie?

In this gripping psychology book, the leading psychiatrist describes his encounters during psychiatric therapy with patients who are not merely ill but manifestly evil - People of the Lie. This brilliant, disturbing book forces us to confront the darker side of our natures and to recognise that without spiritual and religious dimension, modern psychiatry cannot claim to understand human nature or behaviour.
