AMOS - Statistics Solutions

Confirmatory factor analysis (CFA) has been widely used as evidence of construct validity in theory-based instrument construction. A confirmatory factor-analytic model takes into account the differences between the true and observed scores by including pertinent error variances as model parameters in a structural equation modeling framework.

This method uses a common latent factor (CLF) to capture the common variance among all observed variables in the model. To do this, simply add a latent factor to your AMOS CFA model (as in the figure below), and then connect it to all observed items in the model. Then compare the standardised regression weights from this model to the standardized regression weights of a model without the CLF.
