as my user name implies, I failed the written ATLS portion during residency orientation (practical went fine as did ACLS/BLS/PALS) and I have to re take the written test. I think I got confused with what the instructors were saying (as in they were talking about what they do in real life, although ATLS is taught world wide in places with various medical capacities).

Advanced trauma life support (ATLS) is a training program for medical providers in the management of acute trauma cases, developed by the American College of Surgeons. Similar programs exist for immediate care providers such as paramedics. The program has been adopted worldwide in over 60 countries, sometimes under the name of Early Management of Severe Trauma, especially outside North America.
