If, when speaking of “hell,” one is thinking of the current holding place of the unrighteous dead, Scripture simply does not tell us when that place was created. Presumably it would not have been needed until the first unrighteous person died. Obviously, God may have had this place prepared some time in advance, but we simply don’t know.

When was hell created? | GotQuestions.org

Answer: Hell is a place of suffering originally prepared by God for the devil and his angels (Matthew 18:9; 25:41). The words Hades (Greek) and Sheol (Hebrew) are sometimes associated with hell. However, Hades/Sheol is simply the place or realm where the spirits of people go when they die (see Genesis 37:35).

Did God create hell? | GotQuestions.org

God created hell for those who choose sin instead of God. Let’s discuss what God did not create hell for. To many, hell seems to exist to make us choose God out of fear. But we can see from God’s nature – and the nature of His word – that He did not create hell to make us afraid. He tells Christians and other people hundreds of times ...

When God Made Hell: The British Invasion of Mesopotamia ...

While we might acknowledge the sense of a “spatial” character in eternity, if for no other reason that we believe in the resurrection of the body, heaven and hell are both more properly understood as states of being, either in perfect union with God or in total separation from God, respectively. Therefore, the plain answer to “who” created hell is that hell is not created, as it is not a place but a state of being.

When God Made Hell eBook by Professor Charles Townshend ...

God made the whole universe in six, literal twenty-four-hour days, including time, the angels, and everything that is. What day He made the angels is not known since the Genesis story is mainly telling events on the earth. The angels were probably made on the first day, before God laid the foundations of the earth (Job 38:4-7 and Genesis 1:9).
