Philip K. Dick was a writer who happened to be light years ahead of his time. His novels are somewhat confusing at times, leaving the reader wondering what the story was actually about (usually because they're about several things that don't have anything to do with each other), but even the novels are compelling and totally worth reading.

The film also uses a famous speech by Philip K. Dick to enunciate the theme even further. What if we are living in a simulation, and the world as we know it is not real? To tackle this mind-bending idea, acclaimed filmmaker Rodney Asher (ROOM 237, THE NIGHTMARE) uses a noted speech from Philip K. Dick to dive down the rabbit hole of science ...
