Introduction System Modelingfor Control. Definitions: Modeling and Analysis of Dynamic Systems. Dynamic Systems systems that are not static, i.e., their state evolves w.r.t. time, due to: input signals, external perturbations, or naturally. For example, a dynamic system is a system which changes: its trajectory → changes in acceleration, orientation, velocity, position. its temperature, pressure, volume, mass, etc. its current, voltage, frequency, etc.

Modeling and Analysis of Dynamic Systems

Dynamic systems models go beyond the traditional individual information processing level, engaging more actively in the relationship between an operator, tasks, and contexts. This systems approach is expected to have more room to embrace affective elements in the model.

In mathematics, a dynamical system is a system in which a function describes the time dependence of a point in a geometrical space. Examples include the mathematical models that describe the swinging of a clock pendulum, the flow of water in a pipe, and the number of fish each springtime in a lake. At any given time, a dynamical system has a state given by a tuple of real numbers (a vector) that can be represented by a point in an appropriate state space (a geometrical manifold). The evolution r
