Islam in the African diaspora. The practice of Islam by members of the African diaspora may be a consequence of African Muslims retaining their religion after leaving Africa (as for many Muslims in Europe) or of people of African ethnicity converting to Islam, as among many African-American Muslims, where conversion is often presented as a recovery of an African heritage lost during the Atlantic slave trade.

Islam in the African diaspora - Wikipedia

The migration in 622 inaugurated the Islamic era. The history of Muslims moving to the western hemisphere is a fascinating account of modern migration. The third Islamic historical feature is social movements. The record of mass Muslim movements in the African Diaspora began in Trinidad in 1770 with Man dingo brought to Port of Spain from Senegal.

Race and Labor in the South Asian Diaspora. Terrifying Muslims highlights how transnational working classes from Pakistan are produced, constructed, and represented in the context of American empire and the recent global War on Terror. Drawing on ethnographic research that compares Pakistan, the Middle East, and the United States before and after 9/11, Junaid Rana combines cultural and material analyses to chronicle the worldviews of Pakistani labor migrants as they become part of a larger ...
