You make inferences every day. When you figure out what someone means, you are making an inference. When you infer something, you draw upon what you observe and know to come to some conclusion that might not be directly stated. For example, if someone came in the door and they were putting down their umbrella and water was dripping off it, you could inferthat is was raining outside.

Reading Worksheet 1 - Inferences

In each inference worksheet students are asked to do two things: answer questions where the solutions can only be provided by making logical inferences, and explain how they got their answers. Having students explain their answers helps to slow them down and cause them think about what they are doing, and open-ended questions make it easier for the teacher to identify when students are copying.
