The Overspent American challenges the inevitability of the consumer lifestyle by proposing alternatives to the work and spend cycle that has so many Americans feeling trapped and unfulfilled.

The Overspent American: Why We Want What We Don't Need

The Overspent American explores why so many of us feel materially dissatisfied, why we work staggeringly long hours and yet walk around with ever-present mental "wish lists" of things to buy or get, and why Americans save less than virtually anyone in the world. Unlike many experts, Harvard economist Juliet B. Schor does not blame consumers' lack of self-discipline.

The Cosby Show’s house and lifestyle was accurate. She was an attorney and he was an Obstetrician. One of the best lines from that show was the daughter complaining to the mother about how “rich” they were and how that made it hard for her to make friends (something to that effect). And the mother responds, “We’re not rich.

The Overspent American is an amazing book (probably one of the best non-fiction works I've read). Juliet Schor is very insightful and makes many good points regarding why we consume as much as we do and why we shouldn't.

The Overspent American: Why We Want What... book by Juliet ...

Schor's goal is to define the variables that predict overspeading among Americans, and thereby to illuminate why the trend to live beyond our means has increased so rapidly in recent years. Her examinations also suggest a variety of steps we can take to make ourselves happier (since, make no mistake, people who make more money and buy more things are no happier than people of more modest desires).
