Define the decision. Ask yourself if the decision involves a moral or non-moral area. It is actually a little easier to discern the will of God in moral areas because most of the time you will find a clear direction in God's Word. If God has already revealed his will in Scripture, your only response is to obey.

Biblical Decision Making in 10 Steps

He does this by slowly going through many commonly cited verses that seem to support the secret-will-of-God view of decision-making ("God is not a God of confusion but of peace" "Trust in the Lord with all your heart... and he will make your paths straight," or any verse where God tells a biblical character what to do), and does what a good exegete does; he looks at language, context, nuance, use of the text throughout Scripture, and possible meanings before settling on what the text is ...
