Overcurrent Protection Relay. Relay protection against high current was the earliest relay protection mechanism to develop.
 From this basic method, the graded overcurrent relay protection system, a discriminative short circuit protection, has been formulated. This should not be mixed with 'overload' relay protection, which typically utilizes relays that function in a time related in some degree to the thermal capacity of the equipment to be protected.

Based on application the protection relay can be categorized as- Primary relay. Backup relay. Primary relay or primary protection relay is the first line of power system protection whereas backup relay is operated only when primary relay fails to be operated during a fault. Hence backup relay is slower in action than primary relay.
