Ten Thousand Things Nurturing Life

The book Ten Thousand Things: Nurturing Life in Contemporary Beijing is an ethnographic and philosophical investigation of Beijing residents' health practices and discourses in the early 2000s. It is sophisticatedly written by two scholars from different academic traditions: Judith Farquhar, an American anthropologist based at the University of Chicago, and Qicheng Zhang, a Chinese philologist at Beijing University of Chinese Medicine.

Ten Thousand Things: Nurturing Life in Contemporary ...

As ancient life-nurturing texts teach, the cultural practices that produce particular forms of life are generative in ten thousand ways: they "give birth to life and transform the transformations." This book attends to the patterns of city life, listens to homely advice on how to live, and interprets the great tradition of medicine and metaphysics.
